we anticipated a year or two since. Midhigar , Indiana, and Illinois must in a few years be the grar ary of this and Illinois must in a few years be the grar ary of this country, and the source from which supply a for any external demand that may from time to time arise, will be derived. Without any internal impresses of any value, these States have progressed in population and in products, much faster than any othe are, and it is, therefor reasonable to anticipate a more arapid growth, when the various modes of communication, now in the course of construction, are completed, Whatever stimulates production in these States, approves their wealth. High prices exert the most healthy atimulus, and a foreign consumption is the meast beneficial, as it increases the wealth of the countrely as. It is estimated that the wheat and corn crops are fifty per cent greater than those of year will be at least fifty per cent greater than those of last year, and that these products will net; to the producers no arly twenty-five per cent better prices, making an aggregate increase in the value of the products of the se States, of about seventy-five per cent.

he increased value of the products of these States this fear, compared with last, will be nearly sufficient to pay re debt of each. The same tax, therefore, up. on the increased wealth of each State, should produce nearly double the revenue the tax of last year did. The system of taxation in operation in these States, does not apply so much to the increased products, as to the in-creased value of land cultivated, and the additional quantity brought under cultivation each year. The increase in population and in products in Illinois, shows that there population and in products in Thinois, shows that there must have been a very great increase in the quantity of land cultivated. In 1840, according to the census, the population was 476,183; it is now estimated from the imperfect returns of the census this year, to be about 700,000— an increase in five years of 224,000 souls. Michigan has increased in about the same proportion ; but Indiana has allen a little short of that per cent. The increase in population in these States, is principally from immigration, although in such prolific sections, the increase from births is not a small per cent. The bulk of the increase is, however, a class that at once become producers, and the resources of the State are immediately increased by We annex a table showing the quantity of each agri cultural product, raised in Illinois and Indiana in 1844, with the estimate for 1845, upon as good data as within at least within the actual yield, it will be seen that the increase in the value of wheat alone in Illinois is equal to about four millions of dollars, and in Indiana nearly the same amount. The total wheat crop of Illinois in 1844 was valued, at $3,042,000, at 55 cents per bushel; this year the present price is about $1 10 per bushel, at which the crop of 1835 would be valued at $7,160,000. an increase equal to one-third of the total debt o the State. The corn crop of Illinois, in 1844, was valued at $,0,840,000, at 50 cents per bushel; this valued at $1,9,840,000, at 50 cents per busnel; this year it is 'gorth at least 60 cents, at which the present crop w ould be valued at $15,300,000, an increase of about five and a half millions of dollars. The crops of Indiana 'save increased in the same proportion.

When we look at the immense value of the agricultural products of these two States, and consider that it is, as yet, but a fraction of what it ultimately will be, it appears impossible that the people should much longer suf for the name of delinquency to apply to them.

There appears to have been an expansion in all the departments. The busy season has just opened in New Orienns, and the banks are extending their operations.
The movements in all kinds of agricultural products, at that port, this season, will, without doubt, 'se very ex-tensive, and there will be a much greater demand for banking facilities than usual. The receipt sof cotton and flour at New Orleans, will undoubtedly be very large, as the crop of the first named article now, coming in, bids fair, being large, and the demand for the latter article is so fire at, that the supplies from the intr rior will be coming lorward throughout the winter very forward throughout the winter very rapidly. We have no doubt but that the exports of four from New Orleans through the winter, will be as 'arge as from any other port not excepting this. Or ar receipts will, under the most favorable circumstanc es, soon be cut off, and the only port in the country, b aving an open communication with the interior, thror shout the winter, is New Orleans; and to that port, we must look for supplies to keep down prices in this market and for shipment. Illinois.
Indiana and Missou id depend almost entirely upon the New Orleans ou' let, for the distribution of their products to the east ern markets, and the bulk of their exports hardly b egins to come forward until very late in realizing this year, and we look for the greatest activity in bres datuffs at New Orleans, throughout the winter. MY EAU LUSTRAL HAIR RESTORATIVE.

This universally approved and admired article, free from ardent spirits, pungent essential oil, and other destructive materials. It is cleans the hair expeditiously, renders it beautifully bright, and imparts to it the delicate fragrance of the flowers—Hair washed with this Extract soon becomes pleasingly soft and luxurisat in its growth; and it will positively brigh in new hair on both heads by its use, and hair that has been made harsh, and is turning grey or falling out, by the use of spirit or other improper preparations, will soon be restored to its natural color and brilliancy by a few applications of the Eau Lustral. It is a preservative against baldenses, and an infallible cure in all affections of the skin on the head, as dandrinf—and for preventing the falling off of the hair and turning grey.

It is the simple produce and immed ate extract of some plants salestry for the hair, endowed with properties so highly cleansing that it disengages the Epidermis and Capillary tubes of the corrosive action of the Perspiration, and of the dry and dead particles that it deposits. This preparation purifies the hair, and gives to it a beautiful gloss and softness, and an agreeable and vivifying periume.

HILL'S INFALLIBLE ONGUENT FOR THE HAIR.

CAN any thing be more honest? Notice the fact that I never publish any certificate commendatory of the above unless it has the residence of the individual giving it appended, which enables you to satisfy yourselves (by equiry) that the Onguent is reality what it purports to be; and understand ye also that it is warmined in all cases, either young or old, if properly applied, to effectually stay alopecy or falling off of the hair, restore it to baid parts, eredicate pityriasis, dandruf, scurl, sact.

I do hereby certify that I have been seriously afflicted with dandraft and falling off of the hair, and made use of several articles for the same without: the least benefit; indeed I was fearful of becoming hald, finally, being induced to use Hill's liafallible Onguent, I am happy to say the result was most antisfactory, for in a short time the dandruff entirely disappeared, my hair soon commenced growing, and is now thicker than it ever was, being also soft, moist and glossy. I caustrougly recommend if for the above. Yours, &c.,

Washington. [Correspondence of the New York Herald]

Washington, Nov. 18, 1845. Arrivals General Dix - News-mongers and Latter writers of the Stock-Jobbing Organs-Cliques-Their Real Naturs-Order and Harmony of the Democratic Party-A Word about your Locos in

Senator Allen and Felix Grundy McConnell are on the ground, and Mr. King, from Georgia. Senator Dix, of New York, is quietly settled in a pleasant ouse on C street, and is living like a philosopher. He had nothing to do with "Sandy Hill preaching" never had a trick about him—and yet he is one of the strong men of New York, and will occupy an honorable standing in the Senate. He is, withal, not only a man to be relied on for judgment, for integrity, for ability, and a wide and profound knowledge of parties and of men, but he is a scholar and a man of taste. He has his saloons filled with beautiful pictures, collected abroad during his recent tour in Europe, and his residence on the shores of the Mediterraneas. He is a man of great blandness of manner and familiarity and social feeling. The more such men we have the better. On Saturday a diplomatic dianer comes off at the President's. This is all the scandal I have for you to-day. Now, my good capitaine, I want to give you a hint about letter writers. Do for decency's sake see that the letter writers at Washington take better care of what they say. Of course you cannot expect they won't occasionally lie, particularly those who correspond for the stock-jobbing organs—but let them know that the public will pardon a lie quicker than a blunder—that the world acts on the maxim of Talleyrand, that any thing may be pardoned in a man except a blunder. All summer long the Washington letter writers have been croaking about cliques and plots, and mines, and explosions, and an honest-minded man who read the Wall street papers, supposed that there was to be a crusade proclaimed against the new President by his old friends, and that the democratic party was going to pieces. Now, give me your ear a few minutes, M. le Capitaine; while I tell you the truth, for what I say you will find to be true in less than three weeks.

Most of the clique war has been got up by the recent tour in Europe, and his residence on his old friends, and that the democratic party was going to pieces. Now, give me your ear a few minutes, M. le Capitaine; while I tell you the truth, for what I say you will find to be true in less than three weeks.

Most of the clique war has been got up by the whige—the rest by a few disappointed men who expected, because they had made some noise during the election, that therefore Mr. Polk was bound to make heroes of all of them. Mr. Calhoun has not gained in this at all. He would no doubt have been glad to have remeined in his office as Secretary of State, but his friends have said a good deal more about his being "turned out" than he will ever thank them for. They have carried the joke too far, and he saw it was time for him to correct the mistaken impressions they had scattered abroad so industriously. Therefore, an intimation has come from a quarter that cannot be doubted, to the effect that he is still determined as he was in the campaign, to support Mr. Polk in all his great measures. Mr. Calhoun, rely upon it, will make no opposition to the President; he will be one of his boldest and warmest supporters. From Mr. Benton nothing sweakly is looked for. He did not write those articles on Oregon, nor has he written a line for the Union—so I am informed in all quarters. But he is warm and enthusiastic for Oregon, for Texas, for Democracy, and will be bold and unflinching in his support of Mr. Polk. A good deal that has been said about mutual jealouises and bickerings between Mr. Buchanan and Mr. Dallas is false—the rest is mere conjecture. There is quite enough harmony there for all practical purposes. The fact is, all great men in this country and every other are jealous of each other whenever they may become rivals—witness Clay and Webster. Clay always knew he was more available than Dannel, but he also knew that Daniel stood in his way, and he hated him just as much as was necessary. But whatever may be the feelings of Mr. Dallas, I am perfectly sure that the Secretary of State knows his own strength ab started up under his nose, and, like Jona's goard, it grew up in a single night. And he was at last obliged to go back, like Henry the 2d, to the Vatican, and beg pardon of his holiness. This has been, and this will be, the tate of every democrat that kicks in the harness, against young Hickory. They intrigue themselves to death. Polk keeps still, and lets his digestion go on—and after fretting and fuming to no purpose, they get sick of it, and give it up as a bad job, and return to their allegiance—
"Will you letime got to England, Mr. Polk, as bearer of despatches?" says Mr. O'Sullivan. "Oh, with all my heart," says Mr. Polk—and of he goes—glad of a chance to sneak, while tha News comes back to its duty. This is the end of the cliques. I shall hereafter say nothing about them—for they are not worth mentioning—Mr. Polk is as firmly seated as any man need be—all I fear is, that he will have so strong, so well drilled, so overwhelming a majority in the next Congress, that the party will really sneeze the last fragment of the poor whigs to death—poor fellows, they are like the remains of Bonaparte's old guard, gathered in silence and sa ness around his ashes, at the Hotel des Invalides.

The Oregon Question-Another War Blast-The Organ-The Administration-Mr. Calhoun-His Opposition Established, and the Opposition of the South, in the Senate, to the Allernative of War-A Plain Statement of the Case.

The Union, of last night, again approximates the western idea of the action of the government in the settlement of the Oregon dispute. From an argumentative and temperately written leader of several columns, we deduce the following conclusions:-That the President will assume the title to the whole of Oregon up to 54 deg. 40 min.-that he will urge of Oregon up to 54 deg. 40 min.—that he will dige the extension of our territornal laws over said territory, after the expiration of the twelve months' notice required to the abrogation of the compact of joint occupancy—that he will, in the meantime, urge upon Congress a military road, military posts, and a mail line, for the protection of emigrants on the route to Oregon, for the accommodation of the settlers, and for intercommunication with our ships at the mouth of the Columbia. There is yet a question to be settled in this business, not conclusively foreshadowed by the organ. Will the President recommend the foreclosure of all negotiations to a compromise? Will he urge the unconditional abrogation of joint occupancy, with a view to the unconditional extension of our laws over Oregon up to 54 deg. 40 min.? It is clearly understood that Mr. Buchanan and Mr. Pakenham have suspended all consultations on the subject—that Mr. McLane has nothing to do with it; that he has been so entirely stripped of all authority in the matter as to make him feel apprehensive that the British Cabinet may distrust the faith of the administration in the Minister of its own deliberate appointment.

Well, then, what is the signification of this warlike attitude of the Union of last evening's issue? It is quite likely that the Executive will go the whole figure; but it would not be so likely were it not for the certainty of the war movement for Oregon, upon the issue of "the whole of Oregon or none, and now or never," being arrested in the Senate, without question. The President may recommend the "compromise at the cannon's mouth," the House may approve it, but the Senate will not endorse it. South Carolina is resolved against it. Georgia will co-operate with her, and the bill is defeated.

The Union, however, will have gained the great desideratum—the suffrages of the Oregon and of the West for the printing, by the bold organic and oracular stand which it has assumed on the Oregon and the will be action of the co-operate branch in fa the extension of our territorial laws over said territory, after the expiration of the twelve months' no-
